Technology and Civic Engagement in the College Classroom: Engaging the Unengaged
Technology and Civic Engagement in the College Classroom: Engaging the Unengaged explores the intersection of the traditional classroom with the broad array of online technologies available to faculty and students. This edited volume provides theoretical and pedagogical justifications for both in-class and online means Political Science instructors have developed and tested to engage an increasingly disengaged college student population. The approaches and technologies examined are innovative and varied, but a common connection between all of the offerings is the question of how and in what specific ways the incorporation of technology into the college classroom can foster student civic engagement.
